The old Chinese custom of punishing the parents for the wrong doing of children is not a bad one—especially in a case like the one this week at M. V. C. If such a law were in existence, parents or guardians would make it a point to know where their boys and girls are at night.

A bill in Congress last week provides for an expenditure of two million dollars for improving the Missouri river between Kansas City and its mouth. Such an amount ought certainly to be a great help to our farmers along the river as well as the boats. It ought to provide a good channel and prevent cutting away our best lands.

W. H. Bloomer of St. Louis, has sent out a most excellent article in pamphlet form which is a plea for the organization of county commercial clubs. He shows what can be accomplished by each county having a good organization, a live farm adviser and with the young folks properly educated and qualified for the farm. Such a condition would cause a "back to the farm" movement as nothing else could. Of course good roads are included.

A movement is being started to uniform school children's clothes. This looks like a very sensible idea. At present many people over-dress their children in order to "put it over" their neighbors who can't afford it and it naturally produces a feeling of superiority in the fortunate child. A plain uniform would certainly improve the appearance of most children, relieve embarrassment and make a more kindly feeling among the children.

Judge Grimm in the circuit court at St. Louis last week over-ruled a motion for a new trial in the case of George A. Kimmel, "the man of mystery," in which a jury awarded a sister of George A. Kimmel a verdict of $29,460 against an Eastern life insurance company. Attorneys for the insurance company who made the motion for a new trial argued that the court erred in the former trial by excluding certain testimony and that the suit was barred by the statute of limitations.

One of the most beneficial results of the late Republican State administration is the change wrought in the political sentiment of the people. When that administration began it was common to hear otherwise good men speak of political tricks and schemes as though they were to be regarded as fair and proper for partisan purposes. Now there is a most positive aversion, on the part of all good citizens, to anything that smacks of trickery or unfair dealing in politics. The political boss is fairly despised. The political schemer is discounted to such an extent that he can hardly "put over" a scheme no matter how shrewdly it may be devised. Public sentiment has been aroused and the demand for honesty in political leadership is as strong as the demand for honest elections—and the demand for honest elections is so strong that the people will no longer brook any interference with an honest ballot. The opinion of the Supreme Court in the election contest cases, and the reversal of the long established Marshall decision choosing ballot boxes to the courts has put an end to the old and a far better light upon corruption in elections.

"Consumers league" are being organized in all the big cities of the country to fight the retailer who is supposed to be making too much money. There are two sides to this question. The average woman of today orders her groceries and meats by phone, has them delivered to her home and if they don't suit her fancy, has them exchanged. The retailer must charge for this as well as the risk of losing his account. Some years ago we strayed into Biddle's market in St. Louis one morning about six o'clock and were so surprised at the activity that we stopped to investigate. This market is in a poor section of the city and here

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan at five and one-half per cent annual interest, with the privilege to the borrower of paying any part of principal at any time, and rebate the interest from date of payment.

These are liberal terms and if you want money, now is a good time to get it.

I furnish abstracts and perfect titles to all lands and town lots in Saline county. I have buyers for Saline county farms. If you have one for sale let me know about it.

ABIEL LEONARD, Marshall, Mo.

every morning the thrifty housewife comes with her basket and pocket book to meet the farmer who is there also with his products. A bargain is quickly made and the day's supplies carried home in the basket. No middleman or extortion about that.

But you say, we couldn't think of doing that! The idea of carrying around a heavy basket. Of course not, no one cares to do any thing he is not compelled to, and as long as we have the money why not stick to the new way and take life easier and let the merchant get his honest dues?

Republican Ideas Approved

The highest compliment that could have been paid the Republican party of Missouri and its gubernatorial leader, Governor Hadley, came from the Democratic party and its new governor. The Democratic leaders, in their convention last September, took up the main propositions advanced by the Republicans of the State during the last eight years and embodied them in their platform, thus putting the stamp of Democratic approval upon them and pledging to enact them into laws if empowered to do so by the people. This was done because the Democratic leaders knew at that time that the people favor of every one of these propositions, and also because the Democratic Senate had made a great mistake in preventing the enactment of laws proposed by Governor Hadley for putting these propositions into effective operation.

Although thus driven by public sentiment to accept and to advocate things persistently rejected and opposed by Democratic law makers, the Democratic leaders in that convention swallowed their medicine and it gave new life and new energy to their party—gave it something to stand for.

When Elliot W. Major began his campaign as Democratic nominee for Governor he shrewdly exposed every one of these propositions and audaciously claimed personal and political responsibility for them, although he had sworn, during his term of four years as Attorney General, personal and political antipathy to any and every proposition advanced by the Republican Governor in his messages to the legislature, and had manifested a contemptible spirit toward the governor himself. In his inaugural address Governor Major, in a bombastic yet plausible manner urged the immediate enactment of laws for the improvement of educational facilities; for the more liberal support of the State University and the Normal school; for an organized system of road improvements, including a highway department for the State, and similar departments for the counties; for the employment of convict labor in road making; for the appointment of immigration commissioners with ample appropriations by the legislature for immigration work; for the reclamation of swamp and unused lands; for a revision of the system of taxation; for a tax on extra accumulations; for the taxation of money and other personal property which escape taxation under the present loose taxation laws; for better support of the hospitals for the insane and a more intelligent humane and effective treatment of insane patients; for a higher standard of efficiency in the eleemosynary institutions; for a public service commission to regulate the rates and service of public utility corporations and companies, including railroad, street railway, telephone, telegraph, express, light heat, power and other public utility companies, and with authority over the issuance of stocks and bonds by such companies. He also recommended a working men's pension law, the simplification of court procedure and the elimination of mere technicalities by the courts in arriving at judicial decisions. He recommended a pardon board, and an increase in the facilities of reformatory institutions, together with an extension of the powers of the Board of Charities and Corrections, and a more liberal support of that board. He recommended home rule for the cities of the State (without referring to the fact that such rule has been denied St. Louis and Kansas City by Democratic legislators for more than a quarter of a century). He also recommended that officers of foreign corporations doing business in Missouri be made liable to personal prosecution for any violation of law in conducting the business of such corporations. With out specifying any particular method for raising revenue he advised the legislature that more money must be collected during the next two years for State expenditures as the State will have additional financial burdens to carry. His closing recommendation for such change in the law of 1912 as may make the removal of delinquent officers a simpler and easier matter.

Those familiar with the recommendations of Governor Hadley to the legislature ever since 1909, and the declarations of Republican platforms for the last eight years need not be told that the recommendations made by Governor Major last week have been heretofore made by Republican leaders and by a Republican governor, and that several of these propositions have been supported vigorously by Republican members of the legislature and defeated viciously by Democratic Senators, simply because they were of Republican origin. But as Republicans have been sincere in advocating these measures they now sincerely hope that they will be enacted by the present Democratic legislature, and enforced by the new Democratic administration.

"I Am Well"

writes Mrs. L. R. Barker, of Bud, Ky., "and can do all my housework. For years I suffered with such pains, I could scarcely stand on my feet. After three different doctors had failed to help me, I gave Cardui a trial. Now, I feel like a new woman."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

A woman's health depends so much upon her delicate organs, that the least trouble there affects her whole system. It is the little things that count, in a woman's life and health. If you suffer from any of the aches and pains, due to womanly weakness, take Cardui at once, and avoid more serious troubles. We urge you to try it. Begin today.

Commercial Club
Owing to a rush of work last week and the editor's illness, we failed to make note of a fine meeting of the commercial club held at the Christian church Tuesday evening. There was a fine attendance and the banquet served by the ladies of the church was certainly appreciated. The main feature of the evening was the address by Dr. Isador Loeb, of the state university, on "A New Constitution for Missouri." Prof. Clay Harvey of Kirksville, also made a much enjoyed talk.

W. H. Wilson will have a sale of personal property, consisting of horses, mules and farming implements, on the Roe farm near Mt. Leonard, on Thursday, Feb. 29th.

Press Clippings

Evangelist Lowry, who is holding services in Atchison, says: "When I started out to preach I was afraid I would hurt somebody's feelings. Now I am always afraid I won't."

At a meeting of the state medical society the secretary read a letter from a consul to the Philippines, urging the need of a resident physician in his district. In the moment silence that followed the young man in the hall arose and said modestly: "I wish you would put me down for that place, sir. It sounds good to me. My practice here died last night."

"Everybody has had their say about the existence of Santa Claus" writes Col. Ed. Smith of the Fulton Journal. "Let me say a word now that this Christmas is over. Maybe I did not know a week ago, but I know now that there is a Santa Claus because my room is full of an avalanche of evidence. He brought me a dozen things I did not want, pretty things, and also four quarts of whisky, two boxes of cigars, a bottle of perfume, etc."

An old gentleman told the following story in a Louisville restaurant the other day: He ran a general store down in Allen county some thirty years ago and one day an old colored woman who had never seen a match came into the store with her son. After talking for some time she pulled out her pipe and filled it. Then she walked to the stove to get a light but the fire was out. The proprietor of the store saw what she wanted and struck a match and handed it to her. She exclaimed: "Lord! mighty what is them things?" She was informed what they were and asked for a few to take home with her. When she got inside of her cabin she started calling her children and said "come heah, your pore ignorant critters and see me jerk hell-fire out of a spinter."

A Rolla boy somewhat lost interest in the church and when questioned by the minister as to the cause of his delinquency, astonished that reverend gentleman by informing him that he swore too much in the pulpit. "Why Johnny," gasped the surprised clergyman, "you are mistaken, I never swear." "Oh yes you do," persisted the lad. "Well," said the minister "you come to church Sunday and if you hear me swear I'll give you an apple pie; and if you don't hear me, you are to give me one." To this Johnny agreed. Next Sunday Johnny was on the front seat. The sermon was about half out and the minister had committed no offense, until, unsuspectingly, he uttered the words: "And it is by God we live and by God we live and by God we die—whereupon Johnny jumping to his feet, cried out, "And by God you lose your apple pie."

Judge Congressman Ralph W. Moss of Indiana did not care much for a hat his wife wore. He finally spoke about it. Mrs. Moss admitted that it was plain, and instead of taking exception to her husband's remark, invited him to accompany her the next time she bought a hat. "I can certainly pick out a better one than that," said Mr. Moss. So they went to the store together. Mrs. Moss said not a word as the come-y milliner displayed one beautiful bonnet after another. It was the first time Mr. Moss had ever been in a millinery store, but he appeared to be at ease and finally selected one of the most joyful creations in the entire stock. Mrs. Moss looked well in it. She was pleased. "I'll take that," said the Hoozer Congressman. "How much is it?" "Forty dollars," said the pretty girl, without even a blink. Mr. Moss saw blue stars, but luckily he had just come from the bank and was able to produce that much cash. Now he lets Mrs. Moss buy her own hats and he does not complain about their being plain.

Rock Road Here.

The first money the United States government has ever appropriated for improving the roads of Missouri is to be spent on the cross state highway in Lafayette county that is, if the postoffice department follows the recommendations of Governor Hadley.

Under the 1-2 million dollar appropriation for post roads, Missouri's share was $10,000. It is to be expended under the supervision of the department of agriculture and the postoffice department. The requirements were that the money should be expended upon one 50-mile stretch of road over which the mails are carried. Before the government gives its $10,000 the county or citizens living along the road must raise $2,000.

The road Governor Hadley will recommend is between Malta Lead in Saline county, and the Jackson county line. It extends to Lexington good roads district in the middle, where bonds already have been voted and the state highway rocked. Since the proposition of receiving $10,000 in government money for permanent road work was made the farmers living along the road and citizens of Lexington Wellington and the other towns on the road have raised $12,000 by volunteer subscriptions.

The Lafayette county court has agreed to spend $1,000 on the road for permanent bridges and culverts. Responsible citizens have guaranteed the remaining $1,000.

The $30,000 will be sufficient to grade down all the hills on the fifty miles of road, to put in concrete culverts and bridges and to build some rock road. All the remainder of the route will be ready for the rock by the time the grading is completed. It will remove the last hills of any consequences on the cross-state highway between Kansas City and Boonville or Glasgow and make the highway a model earth and rock highway.

The citizens of Lafayette county expect to conduct a campaign for rocking this route as soon as the grading and cutting down of the hills is finished. If the campaign succeeds it will make, with the exception of a gap of a mile and a half in Jackson county, a continuous rock road from Kansas City to the Saline county line.—Ex.
